Character-building Books by Erin Ley

Maggie's in the Driver's seat

For ages 6-12

Blast off with space academy student Maggie the Magnificent, a gregarious girl with an inquisitive mind, courageous spirit, and loving heart, as she jaunts from one planet to the next in her spaceship. Fun, creative, intelligent, and meaningful, the six short stories present important lessons in exciting ways that encourage children to tell their parents about their own daily adventures.

Each adventure story takes Maggie to a different planet where she discovers a dominant character trait: responsibility, respect, honesty and accountability, compassion, self-discipline and generosity. As she encounters these traits, she recognizes and shares the significance of each.

Maggie Unmasks Planet Pumpkin

For ages 6-12

Maggie the Magnificent has decided to throw her very first Halloween party. She is very excited to spend an evening with her close friends while meeting those from other planets as well. She is especially curious to meet the residents of Planet Pumpkin.

When talking to her best friend Ryan, Maggie begins to wonder how she is going to get to know the residents from other planets if everyone is wearing a mask. Maggie decides to tell everyone during the party that it is time to take their masks off and get to know each other. Little does she know the surprise that is about to ensue—especially when she is forced to confront the guests from Planet Pumpkin. (deals with self-esteem, individuality, and having the courage to be you – it's more about taking the mask off as opposed to putting one on)

"My books have been written to grow with the children. The younger children are introduced to each 'character concept' and can identify with how the character traits apply to their lives. As each child grows (ages 7 and up), the deeper comprehension of positive character and its rewards, as illustrated in my books, grow with the child. The books are not only entertaining and informative; the text [from Maggie's in the Driver's Seat] has been used as a character-education lesson enhancer for many teachers since the year 2000."
